

Learn about this community

find its story

A community can promote mental health and wellbeing. Understand your community.

Yarn

Show
your mob

Plan

Watch,
think, redo

Think
and do

Do different ways

Draw it

Connect to land

Many ways of knowing, being and doing

- History is important for today and tomorrow.
- Keep on learning, the story grows every day.
 - Now is part of the story.
- Story sharing identifies community and culture you can't always see.

Learning map

Make learning maps visible with:

- Photo walls.
- Time lines, recorded stories.
- Family trees.
- Local community story displays/representations.

Many ways of doing

- Learn the history of this community with the children and young people.
- Share stories from listening to people and reading.
 - Share stories. Draw stories in sand.
- Visit places that are important to a range of community members.

Connecting to Community

- Connections through community members are supports for engagement.
- Seek out individuals who can tell you about this community from different perspectives.
- Connect with all cultures—evolving cultures.
- Connect to Country—this land, its history and its present.

With delivery partners

Funded by

